About the Company

AlJubairi Law Firm

AlJubairi Law Firm started more than 15 years ago with the aim of practicing law differently. Since then, it has grown into an integrated practice that draws on local knowledge, legal specialization, an understanding of how institutions work, and a perspective that reaches across borders.

For us, delivering an opinion is the start of the work, not the end of it. Good legal advice should leave the person making the decision knowing where they stand, what their options are, and how to manage the risks so that they can go ahead on firmer ground.

That is how we see ourselves. Our expertise is built on knowledge and tested in practice, and we measure it by what it adds to our clients' decisions.

Who We Are

We are a Saudi law firm, and our work sits where law meets business and investment. Companies and investors come to us with matters that call for a close knowledge of the Kingdom's legal environment and, just as much, for an understanding of the business itself, its commercial aims, and what a decision will mean for it later on.

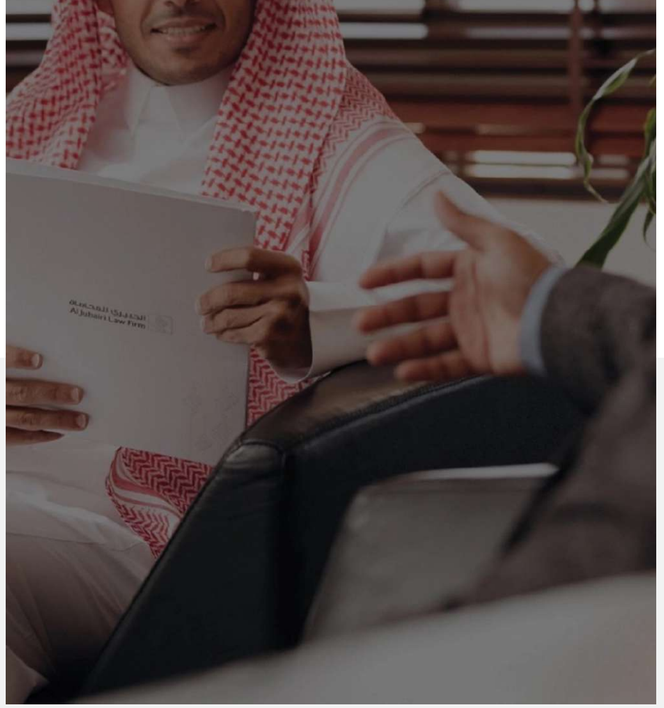

We handle commercial and investment transactions, capital markets and finance, projects, infrastructure and energy, real estate development, and technology and intellectual property. We also resolve disputes through litigation and arbitration.

Legal texts do not mean much in isolation, so we look at every matter in its full context. What is the client actually facing? What options are open? Where are the risks, and which course fits the client's goal best? Answering those questions is how we add value. A complicated situation becomes a clearer picture, and the picture becomes a set of options the client can act on.

Our practice areas follow the cycle of business and investment. Where we are strongest is at the points where sectors and practice areas overlap. A single project can involve investment, finance, real estate, energy, and technology all at once, and a deal or a dispute can fall under more than one legal system or jurisdiction.
